VISUAL SPATIAL

Visual-spatial learners are individuals who think in pictures rather than in words. They have a different brain organization than auditory-sequential learners. In a mostly sequential world, visual-spatial learners are usually recognized through their weaknesses, but they have amazing strengths. This presentation will delve into the nuances of how the visual-spatial learner organizes, thinks, and processes, while providing strategies for helping visual-spatial students succeed in school.

NOTE:

- * Parents and Staff do not need to RSVP
- * Babysitting is not provided; although we encourage age—appropriate attendance
- * Information will be posted after the seminar on Jeffco GT website
